OPTIONAL

Kanjon or Grout?

Either! The character's name was originally Grout, but most people know him as Kanjon, which is my artist name. This is my main character in my art and videos, so he became 'me' over time.

Kanjon is pronounced "canyon", but I'll understand you any way you say it.

Optional Effects

Feeling extra creative? The Orange markings may be slightly shiny to look like paint. Also, his Azure pawpads may be glow-in-the-dark!

Cryptid?

Every form you see him in, is how he always was. He always was a fox. He always was a dragon. He always was a marketable plushie. He always wore a bandana, and never did. Don't worry. The truth is evident. There is no anomaly.

Gradients

The Charcoal gray is not shading; it's a color transition for both the hands and feet. Blending with an airbrush usually does the trick.

Accessorize

Bandana!

I almost always forget to draw this. Can you take up the challenge of giving him his one piece of clothing?

Any nice shade of blue works well.

Tails

Kanjon is a fox and may be drawn with a fox tail. Or, if you like the more draconic look, the spiky tail fits well too!

Foxy Fluff

The fox tail has orange fluff on top, from the back to halfway down the tail. Under that, the top of the tail is Stone color, and the underside Platinum.

Stabby Spines

When drawing him with a spiky tail, consider how the torso continues onwards into the tail shape, like a lizard. The tail spikes continue up the back, skipping over the Mountains mark.
